I. Introduction

The following is a list of tangible personal property and services the sale of which is subject to sales and use tax. This is not a complete list but may be used as a guide in determining the taxability of tangible personal property and services. This list is published pursuant to Maryland Tax-General Article §11-109.

A rebuttable presumption exists that any sale in Maryland is subject to sales and use tax. Whether a sale of a particular good or a service is taxable depends on many factors. You should consult the applicable law, regulation, and the Comptroller's tax publications for more detailed explanations of property and services that are subject to sales and use tax.

II. Services

Charges for services are generally exempt from Maryland sales and use tax unless they are specifically taxable under Maryland law.

Maryland law also states that a charge for a mandatory gratuity or service charge in the nature of a tip for serving food or any type of beverage to a group of more than 10 individuals is subject to sales and use tax.³

B. Nontaxable Services

Maryland law states that a charge for the following services is not part of taxable price and thus, is not subject to sales and use tax:⁴

- A personal, professional, or insurance service, that is not a defined taxable service and involves a sale as an inconsequential element for which no separate charge is made.
- Custom computer services
- A delivery, freight, or other transportation service for delivery directly to the buyer by the vendor or by another person acting for the vendor, unless the transportation service is a taxable service

Food for Immediate Consumption is Subject to Tax

Sales and use tax applies to the sale of food and beverage items that are available for immediate consumption. "Food for immediate consumption" is defined under Maryland law as:

- Food obtained from a salad, soup, or dessert bar
- Party platters
- Heated food
- Sandwiches suitable for immediate consumption
- Ice cream, frozen yogurt, and other frozen desserts, sold in containers of less than 1 pint

Food for immediate consumption is subject to tax regardless of whether sold for consumption on or off the premises of the vendor. In addition, any other food that is sold for consumption on the premises of the vendor or the premises of a third party but made available to the vendor for consumption of food is subject to tax. Any food item sold for consumption off premises by a vendor that does not qualify as a substantial grocery or market business is also taxable.

Salad, Soup or Dessert Bars

Food obtained from a salad, soup, dessert bar, or buffet is taxable whether served hot or cold.

Party Platters

Food that is prepared and arranged on a platter and is ready to be eaten is taxable whether the food is served hot or cold. Examples of party platters include:

Thus, while the tax will apply to the sale of a single ice cream sandwich, it will not apply to a package of a dozen ice cream sandwiches containing one pint of ice cream or larger.

Sales of Exempt Food Items Combined with Taxable Food or Non-Food Items

If a food that is exempt from tax is sold in combination with a taxable food or non-food item, the entire charge is subject to sales tax. There is no allocation of the purchase price between taxable and non-taxable items. The following are examples of taxable combinations:

However, food stamp eligible food does not include alcoholic beverages, tobacco, and hot foods for immediate consumption.

If a customer purchases both taxable and nontaxable food stamp eligible food with a combination of food stamps and cash, credit card or debit card, the vendor must apply the food stamps to the eligible taxable items first, and then any remaining food stamps to the eligible nontaxable items. After application of the food stamps, the balance of the eligible taxable items paid for with cash, credit card, or debit card is subject to tax.
